IN MEMORIUM

SEXTON LARSON 1915 - 1973

Sexton Larson, a great teacher and an even greater person, is dead. But he continues to teach through the people who came to know him and were fortunate enough to gain a portion of the knowledge he had to share not only about American History but more importantly about life itself.

Administration and faculty as well as students benefitted from their experiences with Mr. Larson. Mr. Abraham, who was the principal for four of Mr. Larson's nineteen years teaching at Jackson, had this to say about him, "He was the most outstanding teacher I ever worked with. The biggest thing I thought about him was that he was very fair and very honest. He told administration and faculty alike exactly what he liked and disliked. Everyone knew exactly where they stood with him." Mr. Abraham added that despite his opinions, after he expressed them and an administrative decision was made, he followed it.

Mr. Larson's methods of teaching also impressed Mr. Abraham. "He was a very well educated man and had confidence in his abilities. In my four years as principal and to my knowledge he has never sent a problem student to the office. I think if he had he would have considered it a personal failure on his part. Most students never really considered him a close friend, but if they got into serious trouble they could feel confident in going to him for help."

Students could go through his class hating him, but when they got out, many thought he was the greatest teacher they ever had. Most students didn't realize just how much they had learned until they had passed his class.

Mr. Larson taught much more than history in his history class. Carl Ryberg, not only a fellow teacher but a close friend of Mr. Larson's for several years explains this. "He really had a concern for the students in his classes. He was interested in the kids, hoping that they would develop something that they would carry with them through life. He was really concerned about citizenship and what goes on in this country." Develop is an excellent choice of words for he taught through careful development. Citizenship was not a daily lesson, yet when a student had been through his course the concept of citizenship had been instilled in the student's mind quite without him being aware of it.

Being a close friend of Mr. Larson's, Mr. Ryberg also knew of his teaching qualifications. "He had a terrific amount of knowledge about every subject. He just devoured books, and he had a memory to go with it so no matter what you were talking about he really knew about it. So, when you asked him a question, you could be sure you would get an authoritative answer. As far as history and government were concerned, I thought he was an expert." It is evident he possessed the two basic elements in vast quantity that constitute a good teacher: knowledge and a concern for his students.

Mr. Larson's past students themselves felt that they learned more valuable a lesson than history had to offer. Lori Rehnelt said, "The most important lesson I learned from Mr. Larson was self respect. Gail Opheim added, "He respected everybody as themselves. He didn't put anybody down." The respect he had for students, and the respect he taught students for themselves was fully repaid to him through the respect he earned both as a teacher and outside the classroom as a fellow human being.

Jackson High School and its upcoming students are truly at a loss with the death of Sexton Larson, but his spirit and teachings shall live on.

CROSS COUNTRY

The 1973 Cross Country team, although not having a winning record was an improved team. The Cross Country team was young and put in alot of hard work. They worked well together and had good team spirit. Cross Country probably takes more endurance than many other sports. You have to put in alot of time and preparation. Both mentally and physically!

We support our Cross Country runners and wish them the BEST OF LUCK in their 1974 Cross Country season!!!

I enjoyed my year in Jackson very much. During my stay I met many people. I had the opportunity to make lots of friends. There has always been some activity that kept me busy like tennis, snowmobiling, canoeing, or just enjoying nature. I enjoyed being able to participate in sports and this was of great value to me. This has been a great experience. I will never forget learning to understand different people. It showed me how people of different countries can live together. I hope I will be able to come back.

Thank-you,
Eva Klamler

The 1974 track season can be considered a success for the Jackson thinclads.

Two dual meet victories, close second and third place finishes in triangular meets and generally fourth and fifth place team finishes in the large relay meets.

The strength of the track team centered mainly in the field events where Rick Ailts, Craig Abraham, Monte Beck, Royce Bottin, and Tom Benson were consistent place winners.

The strength of the running corps centered mainly around John Knabe, Tom Benson, Brad Strom, Al Roggow, Randy Roggow, and Bruce Hugunin. These runners combined to give good showing in the relay events and opening running events.

Excellent performances were turned by Rick Ailts, throwing the discus consistently around 170' and the shot put consistently better than 50'. Craig Abraham polevaulted consistently over 11' and set a new school record of 11'6" and vaulted at that height several times during the season. Brad Strom developed into an excellent mile runner and ran consistently under 5 min. in that event and became a consistent place winner for his team.

JACKSON HIGH SCHOOL BAND

1973-74 school year was an exceptionally busy and successful season for the Senior Band of Jackson High School. The year got off to a flying start with a pre-school marching bands season and six half time shows performed here and at Windom and Luverne. The band received a "B" rating in the half time competition at the Tri State Festival held in Luverne, in the rain.

The marching band season was hardly over when they presented their first concert of the season, November 16. From there on it was even busier with three pep bands performing on a rotating basis, The Blue Band, The Gold Band, and Randy's Raiders, continual preperation for concerts and contests and the start of preperations for the solo ensemble contests.

In April and May the season climaxed with all the hours of preperations paying off, the Concert Band received a unanimous "Superior Rating" from four judges in District competition, with 19 soloists and 7 ensembles going on to State Regional competition out of 45 solos and ensembles enterd. To top things off the band received a standing ovation from the audience at the completion at the annual Parade of Bands, spring concert.

State-Regional contest were held the first Saturday in May. 8 soloists and 3 ensembles received "Superior" ratings in this competition.

On May 9th band members of the Sr. Band, 101 in all, left for the much anticipated trip to St. Louis and the Six Flags over Mid America Concert Band Festival. The band received a III rating, but played exceptionally well against competition from several Southern states. The highlight of the trip was the time spent touring St. Louis, the Gateway Arch, the Mississippi Riverboat trip, and the time at Six Flags.

For 102 band members, it was a busy and demanding year, but the rewards compensated for the efforts made.

SUNBURSTS

The 1973-74 Sunbursts were again a busy group with community appearances, participation in the Gustavus Adolphus Jazz Festival, and performing with guest soloist Bobby Herriot at our second Jackson Jazz Festival. The Sunbursts received a starred or "Superior" rating in state-Regional competition for the second year.

THANK YOU

We would like to thank Mr. Johnson, our advisor, for the time and patience he has given us in preparing the 1974 Jay. We would also like to thank Paul's Studio for all the time and assistance he has given us. A very special thanks to the advertisers for their contributions, without it we would not of been able to finance our annual. We would like to thank any one else who contributed to make our annual a great success.

We wish the underclassmen much success and happiness and advise them to make the most of their remaining years at JHS.
